QPain's medical team

Dr Ramsey Jabbour

Specialist Pain Medicine Physician, Specialist Occupational Physician

BSc(Hons) MBBS FAFOEM FFPMANZCA

Dr Jabbour is a dual-qualified Specialist Pain Medicine Physician and Specialist Occupational Physician. His key interests include the management of spinal pain, persistent post-surgical pain, neuropathic pain, CRPS and musculoskeletal overuse injuries. Dr Jabbour incorporates both interventional and medical approaches to pain management, with the aim of reducing pharmacological therapy use. He is highly experienced in treating chronic pain using minimally invasive neuromodulation techniques such as radiofrequency ablation and spinal cord stimulation. While completing occupational physician training, Dr Jabbour was awarded the Deane Southgate Award for graduating with the highest aggregate mark for the written and practical examinations. He also obtained the Merit Award for the pain medicine fellowship examinations.

Dr Frank Thomas

Specialist Pain Medicine Physician

BSc(Hons) MBChB FANZCA FFPMANZCA

Dr Thomas specialises in performing minimally invasive procedures to relieve or reduce pain. His areas of interest include treatment of back pain, sciatica, abdominal pain, pelvic pain, diabetic neuropathy and CRPS. Dr Thomas is highly skilled in performing neuromodulation techniques such as spinal cord stimulation and dorsal root ganglion stimulation. He completed an anaesthetic fellowship in pain management at Christchurch and Wellington Hospitals, as well as gaining Fellowship of the Faculty of Pain Medicine with Merit. He has held specialist positions at Wellington Hospital and the Royal Brisbane Hospital and also served as the director of Metro South Persistent Pain Management Service at the Princess Alexandra Hospital. Dr Thomas founded QPain in 2014.

Consultations and surgery are performed at RiverCity Private Hospital for patient convenience and continuity of care.
